UNEXPECTED CHILL HERE TO STAY

Truman Preparing New Broom Slated To Help Sweep Out Administration

Tom Murphy Expected To Get Key Role

Both Investigation And Prosecution Programs Readied

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—President Truman, who said nine months ago his administration was made up of honorable men, is putting the finishing touches to a new broom program of sweeping out officials who have betrayed their trust.

Announcement of the detailed program was expected Saturday although there may be some delay.

Whenever it comes, it appeared certain that strapping Federal Judge Thomas F. Murphy of New York, famed as the prosecutor of Alger Hiss and as a racket buster, would be offered a key role. The generously mustached Murphy had an unpublished appointment with Mr. Truman Friday, but a snowstorm prevented his flying here. The latest unofficial word was that he would see the President over the weekend or Monday.

INDICATIONS are multiplying that, barring a last minute change, the President's program will take the form of setting up an independent body with power to investigate and perhaps to prosecute. One of its jobs definitely will be to clear the names of government officials—Mr. Truman says they are honest and who tend to their jobs.

Judge Murphy's appointment looked to Washington Democrats like an astute move. He has a reputation as an advocate of good government. He headed a recent cleanup in the New York police department and was widely heralded as an anti-Communist crusader for the Hiss prosecution.

Alger Hiss, formerly a high State Department official, is now serving a prison term.

Murphy obtained his conviction on charges of falsely denying that he passed official secrets to a Soviet spy ring operating in Washington before World War II.

Murphy is a Democrat but has never been active in party politics. This also might be in his favor should Republicans charge that the President is trying to conduct a whitewash.

It was in Key West, Fla., last March and Mr. Truman told a news conference the men around him were honorable men.

THE AIR AT that time was full of accusations that certain government officials had been accepting mink coats, deep freezes and other "considerations" from people who wanted favors from the government.

It was about that time, too, that the President said that a Senate committee's report of alleged "influence" was "asinine."

Then the income tax scandal broke and Mr. Truman—though saying the situation is not much worse than it has been for a long time—admitted he was angry at the acts of "wrongdoers."

Cops Too Rough For Playful Bear

COLUMBUS, Dec. 15—Joe, a three-year-old bear, went out to play in the snow Friday and had an exciting time.

He climbed trees, jumped fences and rolled in the snow—but the neighbors didn't understand. They called police.

Three officers chased Joe. They fired their guns in the air and the 400-pound bear hid in a chicken house, wouldn't come out.

Finally Edward Davis, 18, came along. He is the son of John Davis of Columbus, who keeps Joe as a pet in his commercial garage.

Young Davis, seeing the policemen standing around with guns in their hands, walked into the coop and led Joe out by a chain.

THERE'S GLADNESS again at the State Child Care center, Long Beach, Cal., as children count the new Christmas party fund, donated by sympathetic folks who read in the newspapers that "the meanest thief in town" stole a jar holding $25 in pennies, which the children had been saving since school opened.

NO PROGRESS REPORTED

Severe Tongue-Lashing Given Red Negotiators

MUNSAN, Dec. 15—A United Nations command truce negotiator has accused the Communists of trying to win at the conference table what they could not win in battle.

Other UN delegates reported "no progress at all" in the prisoner exchange negotiations.

Maj. Gen. Howard Turner lambasted the Reds after rejecting a six-point Korean truce supervision plan calling for limited troop rotation. He told the Communists:

"You seek to gain through negotiation what you could not win through fighting. You seek to avoid through negotiation what you could not avoid through fighting."

"In accepting the restrictions advocated by the United Nations command, you would merely accept a continuation of limits on your military capabilities which exist today as a result of UN command military operations."

"WE ARE NOT talking as a victor over the vanquished. We are talking military realities on which this armistice must be based."

Negotiators appeared deadlocked both on plans for policing an armistice and exchanging prisoners of war, despite earlier indications that compromise solutions of both thorny problems might be near.

The two subcommittees will meet again Sunday 9 p. m. EST Saturday in Panmunjom.

Rear Admiral R. E. Libbey said the subcommittees on prisoner exchange are right back where they started.

"The net gain was zero. We are back on page one, paragraph one. This is where we came in. No progress at all," he said.

Libbey said the Reds merely reiterated their demand that the Allies approve their plan for a bulk exchange of prisoners before turning over a list of the prisoners they hold.

UN negotiators, on the other hand, insisted that data on prisoners and prison camps be disclosed as the first order of business.

Some Controls Slated To End

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—Price controls will end Wednesday on certain materials used in defense production.

The Office of Price Stabilization said it hopes, by exempting them from controls, to spur domestic output on antimony ores and concentrates, graphite foundry facings, synthetic crystals, and soapstone and serpentine dimension building stones.

U.S. Grand Jury To Sift Fiction, Fact In Tax Deal

House Panel Suspends Hearings On Amazing Scandal; Justice Department Given Transcript

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—It now is up to a federal grand jury to sift fact from fiction in the amazing and conflicting stories studding a House investigation of federal tax scandals.

This was apparent as members of a House ways and means subcommittee—wearing by lengthy hearings highlighted by everything from mink coats to half-million-dollar "shakedown"—temporarily closed up shop for the holidays.

A federal grand jury is due soon to pick up where the committee left off.

Chairman King (D-Calif.) ordered the transcript of testimony sent to the Justice Department last week. He did so after Abraham Teitelbaum, Chicago attorney, named Bert K. Naster and Frank Nathan, two Floridians, as engineers of a purported $500,000 "shakedown" attempt on the claim they could "fix" his tax troubles.

Both Nathan and Naster denounced Teitelbaum's story as "lies," and Nathan claimed he was the victim of a "frameup."

ATTORNEY General McGrath has ordered the story—with all its conflicts—sent to a District of Columbia grand jury to decide whether prosecutions for perjury are warranted.

The committee called a halt to its inquiry Friday night after laboring for three weeks to penetrate a thick fog of intrigue and mystery spreading through Washington's top officialdom and the haunts of the influence peddlers and "dealers."

"One thing is certain. Someone is lying," said King.

The final day of hearings wound up much like they started—in a flurry of denials, stories of mysterious telephone calls and evidence of lavish favors bestowed on government officials.

While the hearings ended on an inconclusive note, King emphasized the committee was not through. Later—though possibly not for some months—he hopes to tie up the many loose ends.

Meanwhile, the committee will lay the groundwork for its January sessions. These are scheduled for San Francisco on irregularities rocking the Northern California internal revenue office.

In the month since the committee turned to its investigation of tax fraud prosecutions in the Justice Department, a series of rapid-fire developments has rocked President Truman's household:

1. ASSISTANT Attorney General T. Lamar Caudle, chief tax prosecutor, was fired by Mr. Truman as the committee produced testimony picturing him as the recipient of cut-rate fur coats, fancy fishing trips and other favors from troubled taxpayers.

2. Charles Oliphant, chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau, quit suddenly when his name was linked by Teitelbaum with an alleged "clique" of government officials looking for "soft touches" among individuals facing tax fraud prosecution. Oliphant flatly denied the lawyer's story and said he would not endure the "vilification" of his name and office.

3. Nearly two score internal revenue employees have been suspended, fired or indicted in wholesale shakeups. And more were to come, it was indicated.

4. The names of Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, who was Caudle's sponsor, General Services Administrator Jess Larson, Attorney General McGrath and a former internal revenue commissioner, George Schoonenman, have popped in and out of hearing record.

The most mysterious figure turned up by the subcommittee was a man known as Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald—a shadowy figure in Washington circles, sometimes described as an "investigator" or "public relations man."

Grunewald was described in testimony as a friend of Oliphant, Schoonenman and Nathan, and as a man of apparent wealth and influence.

He was cloistered in a Washington hospital when he House committee adjourned. His doctor said he was too ill to testify.

Runaway Train Piles Up On Curve After Wild Ride

L'ANSE, Mich., Dec. 15—A freight train ran wild backwards for nine miles down a steep hill until it shot off the tracks on a curve.

One trainman was killed and three injured Friday night as the climax to a hurtling ride on the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic Line freight.

The 22-car train, pulled by a diesel engine, had been heading up a sharp grade near the upper peninsula village of Herman when the brakes suddenly failed.

The rocking string of heavy cars, loaded with logs, picked up speed as it shot down the hill. Police estimated the train was going as much as 75 miles an hour when it hit a sharp curve near the L'Anse depot.

There was a roar like a string of thunderclaps as all 22 cars crashed off the tracks. Logs were piled along the right of way. The pusher engine was up-ended.

The fireman on the pusher engine, James B. Bennett of Marquette, Mich., was killed. His three fellow crewmen were injured—suffering severely from shock as a result of the harrowing ride.

Entertainer Held In Wife's Death

BOSTON, Dec. 15—Edwin M. Sowder, 43-year-old unemployed entertainer, is being held on suspicion of murder in the fatal shooting of his pretty young wife.

Red-haired Dorothy M. Sowder, 26, mother of two boys aged 7 and 8, was found shot through the head in her bed yesterday.

"She fired one shot into her head. That's the whole story," Police Lt. Joseph F. Fallon, head of the homicide squad, quoted Sowder as saying.

Police Probing Double Slaying

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 15—Police are seeking the motive for a double slaying in which Dr. O. Draper Phelps, 70, was shot and killed in his office Friday by a 60-year-old patient who then killed himself.

Police identified the assailant as Diogenes Boudouvis, a semi-retired restaurateur who had been under the doctor's care of the last year.

BORN WITH her heart on the outside, Deborah Kay Angelo, held by a nurse in a Tacoma, Wash., hospital, is battling odds of 140 to 1 for survival. The surgeon who placed the heart inside said the organ, resting on the chest like a badge, was not even enclosed in a sac for protection. The longest any other child ever lived under these circumstances was 11 hours.

Clyde Wells Gets Promotion, Cambridge Post

Circleville's State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells has been promoted to the rank of corporal in the state police organization.

Notice of Wells' promotion was made Saturday by Patrol Colonel George Mingle, who said the local patrolman will be assigned to duty in Cambridge.

Wells is expected to take over the Cambridge Patrol station in January, serving as supervisory officer and continuing his regular patrol duties.

The Circleville officer has been in the state police organization more than 10 years. He has been assigned to duty in Circleville and Pickaway County during the last five years.

WELLS came to Circleville shortly after having served a three-year hitch in the U.S. Marine Corps as a corporal during World War II. He and his wife live at 506 North Court street.

Corporal Wells said an experienced replacement for him in this area is expected to arrive late this month. The new man has five years experience, he added.

The Circleville patrolman said he expects to leave for Cambridge in early January. Mrs. Wells, however, is expected to remain in Circleville until the new corporal completes arrangements for residence at his new post.

Huge Budget Eyed

ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 15—Delegates to National Conference of the United Jewish Appeal are studying budgets that would require them to raise $175,400,500 next year.

A HAPPY MRS. BESSIE MacGHEE holds a photo of her son, Maj. David MacGhee, after receiving word in Morristown, N. J., that he is safe, although a prisoner of the Reds in Korea. She refused to believe that he was dead after he was reported missing in action when his bomber was shot down. In a broadcast heard in San Francisco, a Communist station listed her son as one of twelve prisoners in custody.

Weatherman Predicts No Relief Ahead

Ohio Highwaymen Battle Snow, Ice With Precision

By The Associated Press
A blast of sub-zero cold struck areas from the Rockies to the Midwest Saturday and the coldest weather of the season was in prospect for most of the country.

The biting cold came on the heels of a fast-moving snowstorm which Friday dealt damaging blows and inconvenienced millions from the Midwest to the North Atlantic states.

At least 27 persons died from causes attributed to the mid-December snowstorm, which left record falls in many areas across the northeastern quarter of the country. The wind-swept snowfalls disrupted transportation and communications in scores of cities.

Temperatures dipped to far below zero Saturday in Montana, Minnesota and North Dakota, as the frigid blasts swept across the Canadian border.

IT WAS -23 in Miles City, Mont., and -21 in International Falls, Minn., Dickinson, N. D., and Lewiston, Mont. It was zero in Denver, 4 above in Elko, Nev., and 2 above in Chicago.

Ohio's first big snow of the season found the state highway department moving with military-like precision into the battle with snow and ice.

Little difficulty in keeping the roads clear and passable was anticipated in the office of Maintenance Chief C. W. McCaughy, whose job it is to keep the highways open.

The fall was no repeat of the "big snow" of little more than a year ago but department crews moved into the battle of clearing the roads with almost military-like precision and full effort.

Orders went out from Columbus and reports came back over special communications circuits linking department headquarters with the main offices of the 12 highway districts in the state.

At 250 "outposts" crews, trucks and plows set out to clear the 18,400 miles of state highways.

And in Ashtabula County new "radio snowplows" were put to the test in the state's "snowingist" area.

SOMEWHAT LIKE a military campaign, progress of crews mowing the 1,064 pieces of equipment used in snow removal and ice control were mapped out in the department's communications room.

Fighting the winter elements costs the state about $2 million yearly—it was about twice that last year—and any means of simplifying the task means a saving in the long run in terms of road repair.

"Radio snowplows" may be one way of making the task easier. If they work out, some day Ohio will be covered by a special network of highway department radio stations on the alert for any type of trouble.

In October the highway department opened a 250-watt radio transmitter in Ashtabula County and installed two-way radios in 15 vehicles servicing county roads.

In this way field reports were speeded up and information proved more accurate. Where sometimes five separate telephone calls were needed to get a report on one certain area, that information now comes out of Ashtabula County through only one relay.

Mr. Republican's Tonsils Removed

CINCINNATI, Dec. 15—Mr. Republican had his tonsils taken out Friday.

A hospital spokesman said U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) was resting comfortably, expects to leave the hospital Sunday. He'll spend the holidays at his home here.

Ford Strike Ends

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 15—A workers' vote Friday night ended a 12-day strike which has tied up Ford of Canada's plant and idled 12,000 employees. After the ballot, a crew was sent in to start work aimed at putting the big power plant back into operation.

Colder tonight. Lowest zero to five below west, zero to five above east. Sunday, quite cold with snow in east, north. Yesterday's high, 30; low, 14; at 8 a. m. today 20. Year ago high, 30; low, 24.

HATLESS and refusing to wear a coat in Washington's freezing weather, President Truman (center) returns to the White House following a news conference at the old State Department building. Truman said he will clean out any and all "wrongdoers" in government "no matter how big they are." The President said his clean-up action will be unlike any that has gone on before. Truman also denied emphatically rumors that he plans to fire Attorney General Howard McGrath or Democratic National Chairman Frank McKinney.

Governor Offers To Run With Taft

GAMBRILLS, Md., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) has a would-be running-mate in Maryland's Governor McKeldin.

He said he would run as the vice-presidential candidate on Taft's ticket next year "if I have the opportunity."

McKeldin said the possibility of his running with Taft was discussed with the Ohio senator's campaign managers recently in Boston.

McKeldin has been mentioned as a possible running-mate for Taft, but this was the first indication the Maryland governor was seriously considering such a move.

Fire Destroys House On US 22

Fire apparently resulting from a defective flue gutted a 5-room dwelling on U.S. 22 just east of the Fairfield County line early Saturday morning, making two families homeless.

The two-story dwelling, located next to the George Justice store, was destroyed when a blaze, starting in the basement spread to the rest of the house.

The families of Frank Keaton and George Bradley, residing in the house, were forced to flee. Family clothing in the house was completely destroyed.

Ralph Bates, chief of the Amanda volunteer fire department, who responded to the call at 4:45 a. m. Saturday, said that the blaze was already out of control when the Amanda truck arrived. Six Amanda volunteers accompanied Bates on the call.

Lack of water was the greatest hindrance to firemen, Bates said. A 450-gallon booster tank on the Amanda truck was put to use, but was not adequate in controlling the blaze.

He said that a high wind fanned the flames, and snow and ice along with freezing weather made it difficult to control.

Bates said that three Keaton children, sleeping on the second floor of the house, discovered the fire and aroused their parents.

The families, along with firemen, managed to save about $750 worth of furniture and household articles. Bates said Keaton valued the furniture at about $2,100.

The Amanda chief said the house was owned by Donald Forquer, of near Commercial Point.

Total damage was not estimated, and whether the structure was insured was not immediately known.

Glaze Of Ice Mars Traffic; Cold May Stay

Slippery streets and highways which meant hazardous driving faced Circleville residents Saturday as a temperature drop turned Friday night's rain into a glaze of ice.

Throughout the city and county traffic moved at a snail's pace Saturday morning, as city and county reported streets and roads in "bad shape."

No local accidents were reported in the city, but State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells said that several drivers were forced off U.S. 23 north on Friday. No one was reported injured.

Ervin Leist, superintendent of city water and sewage department, said that no frozen water lines had been reported to his department.

FOUR of six county basketball games were postponed Friday night because of icy roads and bad weather.

They included the Pickaway-Monroe, Scioto-Jackson, Madison Mills-New Holland and Salter Creek-Walnut contests.

Whether any county schools would remain closed Monday was not determined Saturday.

On Friday Monroe and Scioto Township pupils were sent home at noon and Pickaway Township students at 1:30 p. m.

Wayne and Washington Township youngsters attending Circleville high school were also sent home Friday noon.

Bus and train schedules were maintained through the city, officials reported, but all trips were "running late."

Berger hospital authorities reported receiving no injury cases due to icy conditions at noon Saturday.

RESIDENTS planning highway travel over the week-end were advised by highway authorities to "stay home."

Break in the weather was not likely, even lower temperatures were predicted for Saturday night and Sunday.

NATO Rebellion Being Battled By Gen. Eisenhower

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower fought in person Saturday to stave off a threatening rebellion of North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries against the growing cost of paying for his international army.

A 12-man temporary committee of NATO, headed by U. S. Mutual Security Administrator Averell Harriman, has drafted a secret 100-page report calling for major increases in defense spending by eight of the 12 NATO nations.

Eisenhower went before the committee reportedly to "lay it on the line" that European security is in danger unless the proposed hikes in arms spending are forthcoming.

Some of the eight countries, notably Belgium, have indignantly rejected the committee's recommendations to provide more guns, and others are believed revolting against increases.

James Robinson, 31, of Circleville Route 2, was placed on $200 bond Friday in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for Pickaway County grand jury action on an accusation of drunken driving.

Britain Recalls Envoy As Czechs Charge Espionage

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Britain has called home one of its diplomats whom the Czechoslovak secret police fired upon Friday night during a purported "act of espionage" in a forbidden zone of Czechoslovakia.

Prague Radio claimed that the diplomat, Robert Neil Gardner, and a British embassy typist, Daphne G. Maines, were caught exchanging money for secret military information.

Miss Maines was shot and slightly wounded and Gardner was bruised in a cloak-and-dagger chase while trying to escape in a British embassy automobile, the Czechs said.

The foreign office said it had Czechoslovakia's assurance that Miss Maines would be allowed to leave the country as soon as she is discharged from a Prague hospital. She had been due for reassignment, the foreign office reported.

Czechoslovakia handed the British embassy a note demanding that Gardner be recalled and quit the country before 6 p. m. Saturday.

A Foreign Office spokesman said Britain would not comment on the Czech accusation until it had received a full report from its embassy.

Only you can answer this question, but the fact is the price has gone up 307 per cent since 1940, and the quality is no better now than it was then.

Besides, telephone service is of much more value now than it was in 1940.

The Conquest of Canaan

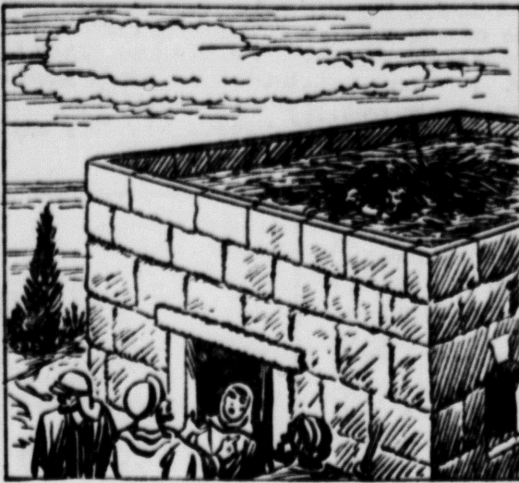

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

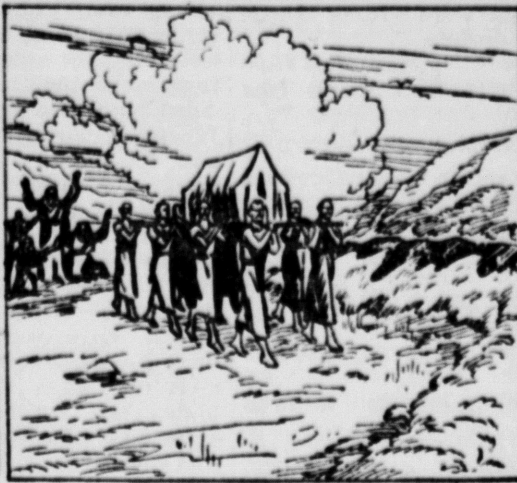

Scripture—Joshua 1—11.

Joshua commanded that Israel's officers pass through the host of people to tell them to prepare food, for within three days their fighting men would cross the Jordan river into the land the Lord has promised them.

Joshua sent two men into the walled city of Jericho to spy on it, but the king of Jericho heard of it and sent officers to arrest them, but they were hidden on a roof top by a woman with whom they were staying.

Jehovah told Joshua that the priests should go before the people bearing the ark of the covenant to lead the way, and He would roll the waters of the Jordan back so that they could pass over with the ark dry-shod.

Twelve men (one from each tribe) were ordered to each take a stone from the river where the priests had stood, and after all were safely across, the stones were set up in Gilgal.

MEMORY VERSE—Joshua 1:5.

Advent Series Is Continued By Presbyterians

Advent season in Presbyterian church is being observed in a series of Sunday sermons based upon the contrast of personalities found among the wise men and the shepherds, as they sought the Christ child in Bethlehem.

This Sunday, the Rev. Donald Mitchell will preach on the subject, "Shepherds and The Lamb of God," using scripture from Luke 2:8-20.

The congregation will read responsively "The Benedictus" from the first chapter of Luke. Miss Carol Mitchell will sing a soprano solo entitled "What Child Is This?"—an old English carol.

At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L. Huston will play, "Good News from Heaven, The Angels Bring," "Bethlehem" and "March of the Magi Kings."

Christmas carols to be sung by the congregation will include "O Come All Ye Faithful," "While Shepherds Watched," and "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing."

In Sunday school during the Bible study hour, children of the primary department will gather around the Christmas tree to hear again the account of the Nativity read from the Bible.

At 7:30 p. m., a Christmas worship service will be held in the sanctuary of the church, conducted by Westminster Fellowship. After worship, the group plans a social hour in the church.

Lutheran Men Meet For Last Time This Year

Men's Brotherhood of Trinity Lutheran church held its last meeting of the year December 13. The meeting was opened with a short devotional service, followed by a business meeting.

Two proposed constitutional amendments were adopted. Following a light lunch, the officers for the coming year were formally installed in a service conducted by the Rev. George Troutman.

Following installation, the meeting was turned over to Gladden Troutman and Carl Leist, co-chairmen for the program.

Troutman read a meditation emphasizing the need for a return to the spiritual side of Christmas and a departure from the overcommercialization that has been taking place. Leist read Christmas verse.

Following this part of the program, a panel of "experts" was selected from among the members. The panel attempted to identify objects and people following the format of 20 questions. Leist acted as Quizmaster.

Next regular meeting of the Brotherhood will be Jan. 3.

Local Pastor Attends Meeting

The Rev. and Mrs. Robert Weaver were in Lancaster Friday morning where the Rev. Mr. Weaver attended a session of the X-Club, composed of ministers in the Lancaster area who meet monthly for a discussion period.

Dr. John Versteeg, pastor of Athens First Methodist church, presented a paper, "Critique on the Church and Secularism."

During the meeting, Mrs. Weaver was a guest of Lancaster Garden Club which was holding its annual display of Christmas arrangements in social rooms of Lancaster First Methodist church.

Following the meetings, the Weavers were guests at noon dinner served in the church.

Fidelis Chorus, accompanied by Miss Pat Nau and directed by Clarence Radcliffe, will open unified worship service at 9:30 a. m., Sunday in First Evangelical United Brethren church.

The Rev. Carl L. Wilson will be assisted by Church School Superintendent, Edwin Richardson in the opening exercise.

"The Light of the World is Jesus" will be the congregational hymn, after which the scriptural exhortation will be read and the pastoral prayer offered.

Miss Nau will play "Chimes at Christmas," "A Silent Prayer" and "Fraternal March."

"Heavenly Brilliance" is to be the sermon theme, taken from a scriptural directive in Isaiah 60:1-4 and St. Matthew 2:2.

Of this theme the Rev. Mr. Wilson says: "Little as we know about the Wise Men from the East, who sought Jesus, we do know that God spoke to them through a brilliant star; and they at once packed up their treasures and went on a long journey, to lay their gifts and their allegiance at the feet of the newborn King. This Heavenly brilliance was a star of promise, of guidance and of revelation. It was more than a mere light. It was a search-light that picked out and illuminated with startling clearness certain spiritual truths. People today could well profit by following this heavenly brilliance."

Children's department and junior department will meet in the lounges, Church school classes will meet in class rooms for Bible study upon "The Conquest of Canaan."

Unified worship service will be held in the service center, since the chancel is being remodeled.

Christmas Music Due Sunday In Lutheran Church

Trinity Lutheran church will continue its observance of the Advent season, Sunday, coupling with it a program of Christmas music.

"The People's Prophet" is the sermon theme to be presented by Student Pastor Fred MacLean. Based on a text from the Gospel according to St. Matthew, it is a study of the personality and work of John the Baptist in light of the part he played in announcing the coming of the Christ.

"Too often, we are inclined to forget that John was a very important figure in the plan of Salvation," MacLean states. "We forget that his coming had been foretold in the Old Testament, and his birth announced to his father by an angel. It was within the economy of God that John should live and die as he did."

The Junior Choir will lead the congregation in singing the hymns "Come Hither, Ye Faithful" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

Christmas Music Due Sunday In Lutheran Church

Trinity Lutheran church will continue its observance of the Advent season, Sunday, coupling with it a program of Christmas music.

"The People's Prophet" is the sermon theme to be presented by Student Pastor Fred MacLean. Based on a text from the Gospel according to St. Matthew, it is a study of the personality and work of John the Baptist in light of the part he played in announcing the coming of the Christ.

"Too often, we are inclined to forget that John was a very important figure in the plan of Salvation," MacLean states. "We forget that his coming had been foretold in the Old Testament, and his birth announced to his father by an angel. It was within the economy of God that John should live and die as he did."

The Junior Choir will lead the congregation in singing the hymns "Come Hither, Ye Faithful" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem." Junior Choir will present as its annual Christmas music two antiphons: "Christmas Alleluia" and "In Bethlehem's Lowly Manger."

Members of Trinity Lutheran church are to have Communion Dec. 30.

Trustee board of First Evangelical United Brethren church will meet in the pastor's office at 8 p. m. Monday.

BILL OF RIGHTS DAY

ONE HUNDRED and sixty years ago—on December 15, 1791—the first 10 amendments to the Constitution were proclaimed simultaneously in force. They constitute an eloquent Bill of Rights.

Their submission to and adoption by the states were due to a strong feeling, both in and out of the First Congress, that the Constitution—which became effective two years earlier—was not broad and explicit enough in its guaranties of liberty to the individual and that it should have specifically guaranteed to the states all powers not surrendered to the federal government.

People in this day take the Bill of Rights for granted. Yet men of today are free because of its assurance of freedom of religion, of speech and of the press, exemption from undue search and seizure, the firm establishment of the grand jury system, the right to speedy trial by jury and to the summoning of witnesses and the forbidding of cruel and unusual punishments.

Without that assurance some of the states might easily have relapsed into rule bordering on the tyrannical.

That, fortunately, did not ensue. But in so wide a nation, with wide divergence of opinion, it has been inevitable that the legislatures of some states should pass statutes seeming to infringe in greater or lesser degree upon the fundamental guaranties enumerated above.

PREDIGESTED POLITICS

WHEN the presidential campaign actually gets under way next year it will have been so thoroughly discussed in advance as to be almost predigested. Although the election will not be held until next November, every potential candidate for both parties has been held up to inspection, while many possible planks in the platforms have been given wide consideration.

Senator Taft is out in front for the Republican nomination. Supporters of his main rival, Eisenhower, spent part of their time saying the general will be a candidate and the remainder insisting he is a Republican. But they no longer predict he will be available because his job in Europe will be finished this Winter. It is apparent European countries intend to offer little military aid to the European army under Eisenhower's command.

The bandwagon is still a factor in politics, and as Senator Taft continues to move swiftly toward the goal, many are getting aboard. One of the most recent is Senator Schoeppel, senior Senator from Kansas. The Eisenhower forces had depended upon solid support of that state.

As for the Democrats, Truman may or may not be a candidate. War and other factors will play a part in the outcome, but what promises to be one of the longest political campaigns in history is well under way.

Soon the little New Year will be showing up in the cartoons, as usual without clothing, although hardly old enough to be a taxpayer.

Club Helps Guy Who Forgets Wallet

NEW YORK —It is always interesting to learn how and where people get million-dollar ideas. You might find out how to get one yourself.

But who ever got one in a restaurant chair after finding he had left his wallet at home?

Well, Frank McNamara did less than two years ago.

"I had to call up my wife," he recalled, "and it took her 45 minutes to drive over with my wallet."

During that time McNamara, who was in the commercial credit business, felt to thinking what a nuisance it was anyway to have to pay restaurant and hotel bills in cash.

The result was the "Diners' Club," which McNamara formed with his partner, Ralph Schneider.

It issues a credit card to some 60,000 subscribers entitling them to charge flowers, food or liquor, or car hire, at some 700 restaurants, hotels and car rental agencies throughout America. These firms send in the accounts to the Diners' Club, which pays them, and forwards its own roundup bill once a month to its clients.

The club charges the subscribers $5 a year for this service, and makes its profit from a seven per cent rakeoff it gets from the restaurants and hotels on each account.

"It saves the customers the trouble of carrying around cash," said McNamara, "and it saves the restaurant owners a lot of bookkeeping and the bother of collecting bad debts."

"It's so simple that at least 25

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Among President Truman's plans that failed is the Nimitz Commission, which was to have had supervision over the entire question of loyalty, or rather, disloyalty.

Because of Admiral Nimitz's deserved reputation, much confusion concerning this Commission exists, the assumption generally being that the Admiral's loyalty or that of other members of the Commission was brought into question. Actually, that was never so.

The issue at stake was the "conflict-of-interest" statutes as they applied to the members of the Nimitz Commission. If they were only advisers to the President, this principle would not apply; if they were to be officers of the United States, it did apply. The President may appoint any advisers he desires, but such advisers have limited authority. The President may accept or reject their advice. However, what the President desired was that members of this Commission should be officers of the United States and yet be made exempt from the "conflict-of-interest" statutes. In a word, they should be given authority without responsibility.

In fact, if the Nimitz Commission were given such an exemption by Act of Congress, the Commission would have come into possession of authority which Congress never intended it should have. The President really wanted one kind of legislation to accomplish altogether another kind of purpose. In this he was defeated.

The President of the United States has, in our history, appointed many commissions and groups, advisory to the President. This is a satisfactory procedure for getting the best citizens, efficient and capable men and women, to serve for specific purposes without requiring them to give up their own businesses or affairs. The Nimitz commission was the first instance of any President requesting legislation to exempt members of such commissions from "conflict-of-interest" statutes.

Sen. Pat McCarran wrote President Truman to explain the law:

"The statutes which this bill would suspend have been a part of the criminal law for many years. Congress, in revising and codifying the criminal law, has had ample opportunity to delete these statutes from the law, but it has never done so. Members of the Commission who appeared before the committee and the subcommittee acknowledged that these statutes constitute a necessary and desirable safeguard, and I think there can be no question on that score. I have heard no one state that these statutes ought to be removed from the body of the law. Yet the effect of repeated legislative exemptions of persons from the operation of the law serves only as a piecemeal destruction of the statutes. Continued erosion of a worthwhile statute by successive exemptions does not of itself justify other and further exemptions. . ."

Here is not a criticism of Admiral Nimitz but another conflict between the President and the Congress over authority. More and more, it would appear that the President and his advisers favor the parliamentary form of government in vogue in Great Britain.

Under that system, there is no written constitution and the will of parliament is paramount. The Prime Minister, a ctual head of the British government, is the leader of his party in the House of Commons. He does not run for the position of Prime Minister; he runs as a member of the House of Commons, the same as any other member.

Our form of government is very different. We have a written constitution with a vast body of decisions of the United States Supreme Court interpreting Acts of Congress, as to their suitability, by the yardstick of the Constitution. Neither the Congress nor the President is a free agent.

CHAPTER FORTY-SIX

DR. STOETZAL looked at Mollie kindly, and rubbed his bald pate. "I'll tell you what I know, Mollie. You see, there was a man murdered over at the hotel. Killed in a brutal way, it seems. This man—Dr. Ragsdale's wife had been—er—seeing him at the hotel. He cleared his throat. "Joining him there on the nights when Ragsdale was on duty. A bad business—married resident. Well, anyway, Mrs. Ragsdale has implicated one of the other doctors."

"Shepherd?"
"Yes. She told the police that Ragsdale alone could not have beaten this man—her lover—in the fashion indicated. I haven't seen him, but from what the police told me—I have to have some explanation to allow them to set a guard on Ragsdale. It seems the man was literally beaten to death. Even the police think it would take two men; the—er—lover was big. An athlete, in fact. Last night, it seems, Shepherd was seen leaving the hospital with Ragsdale. They went to the hotel."

"Everybody goes to the hotel." "It seems, also, that these two men are friends."

"But isn't that all circumstantial evidence?"
Dr. Stoetzal looked at her oddly. "I told you that would be an inquiry. If Shepherd—or Ragsdale—or both—are innocent, they probably can prove it."

"Ragsdale tried very hard to kill himself."
"Yes. Well, the point is, Mollie, I don't want any talking done to the press. You know what nurses and personnel have helped you—Make a point of passing on that order to them, will you?"

When Mollie went over to her office at noon, the newspaper she bought carried a lurid story—with a picture of Peter, "held for questioning without charge." A picture of Dr. Ragsdale, a posed picture, taken a year or so back—and a news picture of Liz Ragsdale, tall, scornful, calm. She admitted intimacy with the murdered man—hoped her husband would forgive her. . .

Mollie spread these sheets out on her desk and stared at them in active dismay. The mere fact of Ragsdale's attempted suicide was staged. "A guard has been set, and his condition is supposed to be critical. An inquiry was to be held the next day—Mollie shivered. She'd be called. Of course, she had been in court before. On accident cases and such—but never for murder. That word was replacing homicide, she noticed. She wadded up the newspaper and thrust it into the waste basket. This act uncovered her appointment book. How was she going to conduct her office duties in a state of near panic? She hadn't even eaten lunch. Maybe a cup of coffee would—She buzzed, and her office nurse came in.

"Florence," said Mollie, smiling wanly, "I hate to ask you—but would you get downstairs and get me a cup of coffee? I haven't eaten—things were rather hectic over at the hospital."
"The murder," agreed Miss Hussey. "The minute I heard that Dr. Shepherd was involved—"
"Yes," said Mollie.
The nurse's eyes were concerned. "I don't think he did it. Dr. Shepherd, I mean."
"Please, Miss Hussey?"
"I'm sorry. Sure, I'll get your coffee. How about a sandwich, too?"
"Thank you. Have any patients arrived?"
"No, Ma'am. It's still half an hour."

"Good."
Mollie would use that half hour trying to recover some poise. She was pacing the office, far from accomplishing anything toward control, when the door opened softly and Nicholas stepped through. In his hands he held Mollie's paper cup of coffee and her wrapped sandwich. He brought them to the desk, then took Mollie by the shoulders and led her to the chair.

"I met Flossie," he explained. "She said you had missed lunch. I knew you'd need help of some sort, but I didn't think about food."
"Nicholas," Mollie said desperately, "I feel as if I were tied in a sack."
"Must be nice," he commented, sitting down in the patient's chair, crossing his legs. His hand gestured. "You eat that, and then we'll see if we can't get you out of that sack."

"Nobody talks to me, and Stoetzal—it seems as if I should be doing something!"
"Why?"
"Well, Peter's a friend—"

"Stoetzal's right. You keep out of this as much as you can."

"He said I might have to testify."

"Oh, yes. As to the condition in which you found Ragsdale. How is he, by the way?"
"He's no longer my case—but I think he might live."
"On milk and rice," said Nicholas dryly. His brown eyes watched Mollie. "Drink your coffee."

"Will you tell me just one thing—if you know. Why was Peter Shepherd involved?"
"Ragsdale's wife involved him."

"I know that, but why?"
"Well—You eat, and I'll tell you what I found out. You going to hold office hours?"

"I am—if I can."

"Oh, you can. You'll feel better when I've told you what I've been able to turn up."

Mollie didn't bother to ask how or where he'd turned up his facts.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

One-hundred and twenty-six persons attended the "Christmas Cheer" fellowship at the First EUB church.

Mrs. Robert Darrow and infant daughter were removed from Berger hospital to their home, Ashville Route 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. George, Atwater avenue, entertained with a farewell dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Moats, parents of Mrs. George.

Bennett Cerf's

Try, Stop Me

The village drunk in Herb Shriner's Indiana birthplace explained to all and sundry that he simply took a nip now and then to "quiet his nerves." He finally achieved the ultimate success, recalls Herb: he quieted his nerves so completely that he couldn't move at all.

Herb also remembers this character's watch. For years it lacked an hour hand. "I'm waiting for something else to bust on it," explained the character, "so's I can get the whole thing fixed at once."

The Algonquin's famous boniface, the late Frank Case, loved William Faulkner personally, but was no admirer of his tortuous prose and grim pictures of depravity in the old South. Faulkner met him in the lobby one morning and complained, "I have kind of an upset stomach today." "Ah," sympathized Case, "something you wrote, no doubt?"

By HAL BOYLE

per bracket business and professional people—with receipts to prove travel and entertainment expenses for income tax deduction purposes.

"The largest tab we've had was for a $25,000 party thrown by a business firm in Los Angeles," he said, "but we have at least 50 members whose monthly charges come to $1,000 to $1,500."

"But in this business you can expect anything. We've got one member whose only charge each month is for chocolate sodas."

A woman member once wrote in she was deducting fifty cents from her monthly bill, and explained:

"The string beans were cold in that place I dined in Connecticut."

Nicholas was a genius at research

—of all sorts.
"You see," he began, throwing his head back, his eyes on the ceiling, "it seems Ragsdale's been trailing his wife. One night she almost caught him at it. And Peter came up just at the minute when he—Ragsdale—could make it seem they were together. But Liz decided both men were on her trail. Wherever she went—especially to and from this love nest in the hotel—He brought his eyes down to Mollie's face."

"Each time our Liz would go to, or leave, the hotel, she'd see Ragsdale, or Shepherd—in the bar, on the street—They were friends. I myself have seen the three of them having dinner together. This morning, when the police questioned her, she named both men as probably to blame. I think she was honest enough to believe both were involved. Though of course she's no good. With a wife like that one, it's no wonder Ragsdale flipped his lid."

"Nicholas, wouldn't a man—a man who was crazy—have the strength to kill another man?"
"I'm wondering if he'll be able to establish insanity."

"I meant temporary. But he was queer, Nicholas. You yourself have mentioned it."

"Don't drag me into this."
As he had promised, Mollie was feeling better. "Try and keep you out!" she challenged.

He nodded. "And if a man ever needed killing—"

"A month ago," Mollie pursued her own line of thought, "I decided there was a tenseness, a queerness about Dr. Ragsdale. When I left him in charge while I went to New York—nothing one could prove—but it seemed as if he was tightened up like a spring."

"Sure!" Nicholas agreed. "May I smoke, Doctor?"

Mollie almost giggled at the manner of his request. "Please do, Doctor," she answered in kind, and again his brown eyes searched her face. He lit a cigaret for her and one for himself.

It contains all the most-asked-for features in a freezer—capacity, front opening doors, direct contact freezing, shelf arrangement, and many others.

We started with the Unice 30, because it was tailored to a waiting market, adding the sizes and types shown here until today Farm Bureau has the most complete line of farm and home freezers available. Thousands of Ohio families are living better, thanks to a Co-op or Unice freezer. You too can enjoy the convenience and economy of a freezer. It's your food bank, and we have a right-size model for everyone. The Unice 30 (left, above) holds approximately 1,200 lbs. frozen food.

Well, Frank McNamara did less than two years ago.
"I had to call up my wife," he recalled, "and it took her 45 minutes to drive over with my wallet."
During that time McNamara, who was in the commercial credit business, fell to thinking what a nuisance it was anyway to have to pay restaurant and hotel bills in cash.
The result was the "Diners' Club," which McNamara formed with his partner, Ralph Schneider.

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days
Among President Truman's plans that failed is the Nimitz Commission, which was to have had supervision over the entire question of loyalty, or rather, disloyalty.
Because of Admiral Nimitz's deserved reputation, much confusion concerning this Commission exists, the assumption generally being that the Admiral's loyalty or that of other members of the Commission was brought into question. Actually, that was never so.
The issue at stake was the "conflict-of-interest" statutes as they applied to the members of the Nimitz Commission. If they were only advisers to the President, this principle would not apply; if they were to be officers of the United States, it did apply. The President may appoint any advisers he desires, but such advisers have limited authority. The President may accept or reject their advice. However, what the President desired was that members of this Commission should be officers of the United States and yet be made exempt from the "conflict-of-interest" statutes. In a word, they should be given authority without responsibility.
In fact, if the Nimitz Commission were given such an exemption by Act of Congress, the Commission would have come into possession of authority which Congress never intended it should have. The President really wanted one kind of legislation to accomplish altogether another kind of purpose. In this he was defeated.
The President of the United States has, in our history, appointed many commissions and groups, advisory to the President. This is a satisfactory procedure for getting the best citizens, efficient and capable men and women, to serve for specific purposes without requiring them to give up their own businesses or affairs. The Nimitz commission was the first instance of any President requesting legislation to exempt members of such commissions from "conflict-of-interest" statutes.
Sen. Pat McCarran wrote President Truman to explain the law:
"The statutes which this bill would suspend have been a part of the criminal law for many years. Congress, in revising and codifying the criminal law, has had ample opportunity to delete these statutes from the law, but it has never done so. Members of the Commission who appeared before the committee and the subcommittee acknowledged that these statutes constitute a necessary and desirable safeguard, and I think there can be no question on that score. I have heard no one state that these statutes ought to be removed from the body of the law. Yet the effect of repeated legislative exemptions of persons from the operation of the law serves only as a piecemeal destruction of the statutes. Continued erosion of a worthwhile statute by successive exemptions does not of itself justify other and further exemptions."
Here is not a criticism of Admiral Nimitz but another conflict between the President and the Congress over authority. More and more, it would appear that the President and his advisers favor the parliamentary form of government in vogue in Great Britain.
Under that system, there is no written constitution and the will of parliament is paramount. The Prime Minister, a ct u a l head of the British government, is the leader of his party in the House of Commons. He does not run for the position of Prime Minister; he runs as a member of the House of Commons, the same as any other member.
Our form of government is very different. We have a written constitution with a vast body of decisions of the United States Supreme Court interpreting Acts of Congress, as to their suitability, by the yardstick of the Constitution. Neither the Congress nor the President is a free agent.

per bracket business and professional people—with receipts to prove travel and entertainment expenses for income tax deduction purposes.
"The largest party we've had was for a $25,000 party thrown by a business firm in Los Angeles," he said, "but we have at least 50 members whose monthly charges come to $1,000 to $1,500."
"But in this business you can expect anything. We've got one member whose only charge each month is for chocolate sodas."
A woman member once wrote in she was deducting fifty cents from her monthly bill, and explained:
"The string beans were cold in that place I dined in Connecticut."

Club Helps Guy Who Forgets Wallet
NEW YORK —It is always interesting to learn how and where people get million-dollar ideas. You might find out how to get one yourself.
But who ever got one in a restaurant chair after finding he had left his wallet at home?
Well, Frank McNamara did less than two years ago.
"I had to call up my wife," he recalled, "and it took her 45 minutes to drive over with my wallet."
During that time McNamara, who was in the commercial credit business, fell to thinking what a nuisance it was anyway to have to pay restaurant and hotel bills in cash.
The result was the "Diners' Club," which McNamara formed with his partner, Ralph Schneider.

CHAPTER FORTY-SIX
DR. STOEFTZAL looked at Mollie kindly, and then he bald pate. "I'll tell you what I know, Mollie. You see, there was a man murdered over at the hotel. Killed in a brutal way, it seems. This man—Dr. Ragsdale's wife. He been—er—seeing him at the hotel." He cleared his throat. "Joining him there on the nights when Ragsdale was on duty. A bad business—married resident. Well, anyway, Mrs. Ragsdale has implicated one of the other doctors."
"Shepherd?"
"Yes. She told the police that Ragsdale alone could not have been this man—her lover—in the fashion indicated. I haven't seen him, but from what the police told me—I have to have some explanation to allow them to set a guard on Ragsdale. It seems the man was literally beaten to death. Even the police think it would take two men; the—er—lover was big. An athlete, in fact. Last night, it seems, Shepherd was seen leaving the hospital with Ragsdale. They went to the hotel."
"Everybody goes to the hotel."
"It seems, also, that these two men are friends."
"But isn't that all circumstantial evidence?"
Dr. Stoeftzal looked at her oddly. "I told you there would be an inquiry. If Shepherd—or Ragsdale—or both—are innocent, they probably can prove it."
"Ragsdale tried very hard to kill himself."
"Yes. Well, the point is, Mollie, I don't want any talking done to the press. You know what nurses and personnel have helped you—Make a point of passing on that order to them, will you?"
When Mollie went over to her office at noon, the newspaper she bought carried a lurid story—with a picture of Peter, "held for questioning without charge." A picture of Dr. Ragsdale, a posed picture, taken a year or so back—and a news picture of Liz Ragsdale, tall, scornful, calm. She admitted intimacy with the murdered man—hoped her husband would forgive her.
Mollie spread these sheets out on her desk and stared at them in active dismay. The mere fact of Ragsdale's attempted suicide was staged. "A guard has been set, and his condition is supposed to be critical." An inquiry was to be held the next day—Mollie shivered. She'd be called. Of course, she had been in court before. On accident cases and such—but never for murder. That word was replacing homicide, she noticed. She wadded up the newspaper and thrust it into the waste basket. This act uncovered her appointment book. How was she going to conduct her office duties in a state of near panic? She hadn't even eaten lunch. Maybe a cup of coffee would—She buzzed, and her office nurse came in.
"Florence," said Mollie, smiling wanly, "I hate to ask you—but would you go downstairs and get me a cup of coffee? I haven't eaten—things were rather hectic over at the hospital."
"The murder," agreed Miss Hussey. "The minute I heard that Dr. Shepherd was involved—"
"Yes," said Mollie.
The nurse's eyes were concerned. "I don't think he did it. Dr. Shepherd, I mean."
"Please, Miss Hussey?"
"I'm sorry. Sure, I'll get your coffee. How about a sandwich, too?"
"Thank you. Have any patients arrived?"
"No, Ma'am. It's still half an hour."
"Good."
Mollie would use that half hour trying to recover some peace.
She was pacing the office, far from accomplishing anything toward control, when the door opened softly and Nicholas stepped through. In his hands he had Mollie's paper cup of coffee and her wrapped sandwich. He brought them to the desk, then took Mollie by the shoulders and led her to the chair.
"I met Flossie," he explained. "She said you had missed lunch. I knew you'd need help of some sort, but I didn't think about food."
"Nicholas," Mollie said desperately, "I feel as if I were tied in a sack."
"Must be nice," he commented, sitting down in the patient's chair, crossing his legs. His hand gestured. "You eat that, and then we'll see if we can't get you out of that sack."
"Nobody talks to me, and Stoeftzal—It seems as if I should be doing something!"
"Why?"
"Well, Peter's a friend—"
"Stoeftzal's right. You keep out of this as much as you can."
"He said I might have to testify."
"Oh, yes. As to the condition in which you found Ragsdale. How is he, by the way?"
"He's no longer my case—but I think he might live."
"On milk and rice," said Nicholas dryly. His brown eyes watched Mollie. "Drink your coffee."
"Will you tell me just one thing—if you know. Why was Peter Shepherd involved?"
"Ragsdale's wife involved him."
"I know that, but why?"
"Well—You eat, and I'll tell you what I found out. You going to hold office hours?"
"I am—if I can."
"Oh, you can. You'll feel better when I've told you what I've been able to turn up—"
Mollie didn't bother to ask how or where he'd turned up his facts.

Child Advancement Club Hears Talk On, "Spiritual Development," By Minister

Annual Guest Night Booked

A talk on, "Spiritual Development of the Child," was given by the Rev. Robert Weaver of First Methodist church, at a meeting of Child Advancement Club, held Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. William Weller, Dunmore Road.

Addressing the group of young mothers, the speaker emphasized that: "Experiences in the home, with the mother, from birth to six years of age, are the most important in the life of a child."

He spoke of the attitude a child has toward God, church, other people and self as being developed in the home, saying, "A sympathetic understanding of other people just doesn't happen, it has to be cultivated in the home."

"Where does the church stand in the child's attitude?" he asked and then remarked, "Too often the pressure of modern society completely shuts out the church. Parents must make a choice. They must decide whether or not the church will have a place in their lives and in the lives of their children."

Enormous limitations have been placed upon them by the Constitution. These limitations apparently Mr. Truman finds irksome. During his administration all sorts of devices have been used to evade constitutional limitations upon the executive. One of those devices placed an American Army in a war in Korea without the consent of Congress. That device called the Korean War a "police action," and gave the United Nations a control over American policy to which the Congress never agreed. It was never asked.

Of course, if the people of the United States want a Parliamentary government, or a Fascist government, or a Communist government, they can pass a constitutional amendment making the necessary changes. That was done with the Income Tax Amendment (the 16th), which turned this country toward Socialism. But if the people do not amend or abolish our written Constitution, it is up to public officials to abide by it, as they were sworn to do.

That was the issue involved in the failure of the Nimitz Commission.

14 County Games Are Postponed

Four of the six basketball games carded for Friday night in Pickaway County were postponed because of icy highways.

Games postponed Friday were Monroe at Pickaway; Scioto at Jackson; Madison Mills at New Holland; and Salter Creek at Walnut.

The Madison Mills-New Holland contest has been rescheduled for Monday night in New Holland, weather permitting, while coaches of the other schools where games were postponed will agree on dates for their postponed tilts early next week.

Gavilan's Rally Nets Victory

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Cuban Kid Gavilan plans to follow up Friday night's stunning technical knockout over Walter Cartier with a Miami defense of his welter title against Bobby Dykes.

"Dykes and Gavilan are already signed," said Al Weill, International Boxing Club matchmaker.

Some 7,253 fans paid $23,637 to see the non-title match between Gavilan and Cartier, a heavy punching middleweight from New York's Greenwich Village.

Trailing on the cards of two officials, Gavilan staged a blazing rally to win on a technical knockout over blood-spattered Cartier in 1:31 of the tenth round in Madison Square Garden.

Tigers Keep Record Unblemished; Washington Wins By 46-34 Count

Circleville's Red and Black Tiger basketball team kept its record of defeats unblemished Friday night when it invaded the Blue Lion cagers of Washington C.H.

The Tiger quintet coasted into its fourth straight loss of the season during the contest when the hapless Washington crew suffered its first victory of the year with a 46-34 margin over the locals.

Both teams entered the Friday fracas with unenviable records of three losses in as many starts for the season. Only Circleville kept its mark of distinction after the final minute of play had ticked off.

The Tiger cagers posted a meagre 5-4 margin over the host Lion club in the first frame of the game—eight minutes of play where the fans saw only a fraction more than one point per minute scored by the combined efforts of both teams.

WASHINGTON accelerated its attack in the second stanza, however, collecting a 22-17 advantage and leading throughout the remainder of the game.

Circleville's Dudley Morris tied with Washington's Bob Alkire for game honors during the encounter. Both tallied 11 points each in the low-scoring encounter.

Enormous limitations have been placed upon them by the Constitution.

These limitations apparently Mr. Truman finds irksome. During his administration all sorts of devices have been used to evade constitutional limitations upon the executive. One of those devices placed an American Army in a war in Korea without the consent of Congress. That device called the Korean War a "police action," and gave the United Nations a control over American policy to which the Congress never agreed. It was never asked.

Of course, if the people of the United States want a Parliamentary government, or a Fascist government, or a Communist government, they can pass a constitutional amendment making the necessary changes. That was done with the Income Tax Amendment (the 16th), which turned this country toward Socialism. But if the people do not amend or abolish our written Constitution, it is up to public officials to abide by it, as they were sworn to do.

That was the issue involved in the failure of the Nimitz Commission.
